Still On Wheels

Eludes Palos Raid

Government prohibition agents swooped down on Palos Park last Saturday afternoon about four o'clock and seized a 1,000 gallon vat and a large quantity of mash in a building near the Southwest highway. One man was arrested. It was learned that the bootlegger who operated at this place has a traveling still, which he has mounted on a truck. He came late at night and distilled his booze from the vats and departed before day break. By using this method the still was not taken in the raid. The vats said to have been made of steel, were destroyed.

POST NEWS AND NOTES

The next regular meeting of the Post will be Tuesday evening December 22nd. It is especially desired that all members be present at this meeting.

The card and bunco party held at the home of Comrade Ferrin at Worth was exceptionally well attended. The Post desires to thank Comrade Ferrin and wife for their hospitality and also wishes to thank the wives of all Legionnaires who contributed cake and refreshments.

The membership campaign is on in full blast and although our Post has made a fair showing to date, still we have quite a way to go to be 100 per cent by January first. We now have 26 members paid up for 1932 and we must get 39 by January first in order to win the Silver and Bronze Plaques for the Post. If you have not yet paid your 1932 dues, please see Comrades Schussler, Cahill or Little, and be sure to get out to the meeting Tuesday evening December 22nd at 8 o'clock.

Will County To Collect Tax By Mail In Jan.

Will County taxpayers will pay their taxes direct to the county treasurer in 1932 as the system of deputy tax collectors in each township has been abolished thru a law enacted by the last legislature. It is said that the old system of having deputy tax collectors was too expensive and that only a portion of the total amount of taxes in each community was collected, which necessitated engaging another collector to finish up the work, thus covering the same ground twice.

As a result of the anticipated savings, Will County has been keeping a force of girls busy since October preparing the tax bills to be mailed out to the taxpayers January 1.

Five machines for stamping zinc plates have been installed in the county treasurer's office. With these machines zinc plates are stamped giving the tax payers name, address and description of property. These plates are then placed in a metallic holder and filed in order in trays which are stored in fire proof cabinets. When the time comes for sending out the tax bills, these plates are placed in an addressing machine electrically operated which then prints the name and address, of the taxpayer on the tax bill which is then enclosed in what is known as a "window" envelope which saves addressing the envelope.

County Cops Feed Hungry Rabbits

County police from Homewood have been taking care of rabbits on a rabbit farm at Cicero Ave., and the Lincoln highway west of Matteson following the abrupt departure of the owners the forepart of the week. The rabbits had been left to starve.

County highway police played nursemaid to 150 white rabbits, property of the Associated Rabbit Packers, Cicero avenue and the Lincoln highway.

Vandals broke into the place, destroying equipment and carrying away pelts. As a result the doors were not open for business. Numerous "customers" have appeared to demand refund of money they invested.

According to their stories, they purchased breeding rabbits for $15 each with the object of selling back the offspring to the company.

Officer Ervin Bettenhausen of Tinley Park of the county police force was on guard at the rabbit farm Wednesday night.

S. W. CHAMBER OF COM.

At the annual meeting of the Southwest Towns Chamber of Commerce held last Thursday evening in the high school at Forrest, Dr. W. R. Schussler of Orland Park was unanimously re-elected as president of the organization. Vice-presidents were elected for every city and town along the proposed route.

Addresses were made by Ben Williams, mayor of Forrest, Mr. Mayhew of Forrest, Senator Simon Lentz and several representatives. Mayor Harnew of Oak Lawn also spoke.

It was voted to suspend meetings of the organization during the winter months and the first meeting is to be held in April. Action on paving the proposed highway by the state will not be taken until 1933 it was brought out.

Music and entertainment was furnished by the Saunemin high school band and by the musical mayor of Essex.

Luncheon was served in the school at the close of the meeting.

The library extension division at Springfield helps the people of the state to keep abreast of the times by buying many of the latest books on new economic thought, discussions of experiments in politics, science, philosophy, religion, and art. When not available in local public libraries, they may be secured free from the division. Some of the latest additions are: "Reason and Nature," Cohen; "The Enduring Quest, Overstreet; "World Revolution and Religion," Matthews; "Philosophy and Production," Frederick; "The Science of Life," Wells; "America Looks Abroad," Mazu; "Hard Times," Ely. Try your public library for these books first, and then apply to the Library Extension Division, Springfield.

Mailing of the 1932 automobile license plates was begun on December 1, in the automobile department, of the office of Secretary of State William J. Stratton. The plates will not become official until January 1. Secretary of State Stratton believes that the new system of photostating applications will materially aid in carrying out the law compelling autoists to secure new plates by January 1.

Four bills passed by the legislature have been signed by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson. Two bills authorize townships to levy money immediately for pauper aid; one bill provides for a closed season of hen pheasants and a number of other game birds; one bill removes a requirement from the grain storage act so that farmers will not have to file insurance policies with the director of agriculture.

Plans for a publication in Springfield of a statewide Democratic organ known as the Illinois Jeffersonian have been announced following a meeting of Democratic leaders including: Thomas Donovan, Joliet; Minority Leader Michael Koe; States Treasurer Edward J. Barrett; John H. Stelle, assistant state treasurer. It is planned to issue the first number December 15, with a monthly issue thereafter.

The Illinois commerce commission has authorized six telephone companies to reduce the rates for service connections and exchange charges. These companies are located in Jacksonville, Pleasant Plains, Bluffs, Pontiac, Streator, and Bushnell. These reductions, with those made by member companies of the Illinois Telephone association, will mean a saving to Illinois telephone users of more than $200,000 annually.

D. W. Robinson, superintendent of the state division of animal industry in the department of agriculture, and other speakers at a district meeting of veterinarians discussed a program of disease control, particularly the eradication of tuberculosis in cattle. During the last few years, tuberculosis in cattle has been reduced from 5 per cent to less than 1 per cent.

State Fire Marshal S. L. Legried has launched further investigation of arson cases in the state, some involving burnings thought to have been connected with the milk war.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, State Treasurer Edward J. Barrett, and State Auditor Oscar Nelson, who comprise the tax levy board, will meet in December to fix the 1931 tax rate.

Announcement has been made of the establishment of a memorial to Verne Hall Detweiler, late president of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers. This memorial will be in the form of contributions to the endowment fund of the Illinois congress, and it will be formally presented at the annual convention to be held in Rockford next April.

There are fewer cases of appendicitis among inmates in state hospitals for the mentally afflicted than are encountered in the general medical practice among normal people. Dr. F. W. McKelvey, state surgeon in the department of public welfare, attributes the comparative immunity of mental patients to attacks of appendicitis and duodenal and gastric ulcers to the regularity of institution meals and to the care given the selection of the inmates diet.

Natural gas at temporarily reduced experimental rates has been authorized. The cities affected include Peoria, Peoria Heights, East Peoria, Pekin, Bartonville, Creve Coeur, Cuba, Havana, Eden, Trivoli, Farmington, Elmwood and Yates City. The reductions range from 5 1/2 per cent to 22 per cent below old rates.

At a conference of deputy fire marshals, comprising the field and office staff of State Fire Marshal S. L. Legried, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson complimented them on their "unsurpassed record in the number of arrests and convictions in arson cases."

Business Improvement in Illinois. The Harrisburg Employment agency created at the last session of the legislature through the efforts of Senator Charles H. Thompson, will start functioning December 1. The agency was placed in Harrisburg due to its geographical position, its proximity to all coal fields, and its availability as a medium whereby southern Illinois people can keep in touch with positions open, not only in private industries, but in state institutions.

Sixteen mines were opened and only one closed in Illinois during the month of October. During the month, 3,135 miners were added to the number employed. Production of coal last month showed a gain of 630,700 tons.

MAXINE was entertaining the bridge club of which she was president with a Christmas party. The group of lively young women gathered around the tree for their annual election.

"Before we take up the election of officers for next year," Maxine announced, "I want to review with you a little of what we have done this past year."

"It was at our last January meeting that we decided that good times alone would not keep our club alive. Then it was suggested that we carry the Christmas spirit through the year by considering the 25th of every month a 'Christmas anniversary,' and doing some act such as we would do if it were really Christmas time."

"On January 25 we helped the Stone boy get a new suit; on February 25 we took out and cooked a real Christmas dinner for the Perkins family; on March 25 we arranged to buy music for the postman's boy, and got Mr. Williams to give him free violin lessons, and by the way, I understand he is showing real talent. In April we took care of Mrs. Perkins while she was sick, stopping in every noon to fix lunch and straighten up."

In August we bought school supplies for Sarah Stone, and in September we made another drive for discarded clothing."

"For a couple of weeks during October we helped in the Community Chest campaign; in November we waited until Thanksgiving day, when we distributed five turkeys; and here it is December again. What are we to do this month?"

"Well," said one of the girls, "of course we have been working all month on toys for the Community tree for poor children. So I suggest that this month we spend the 25th at home, but that next year we follow the same plan, and I nominate our President Maxine for re-election."

The French Santa Claus

WELL, Jennie," said Mr. Jameson, "I don't see but that I'm a failure after all. Even though I could probably sell out this minute for a cool half-million, I cannot give you the only happiness you really want this Christmas eve."

"What's that?" queried his wife.

"Why, our son!" he exclaimed.

"Don't you suppose I know how you are going to miss him this first Christmas birthday of his that he has not been home. Don't you suppose I realize as well as you do that he is our life, our joy, our only true wealth; that money and things are really worth nothing to us in comparison with him?"

"Of course," answered Mrs. Jameson. "But you are a success, nevertheless. If it hadn't been for the money you've made by your hard work, we never could have given Richard the advantages he has had. He has that splendid opening in Chicago, and even if he is too far away to come home for just one day, I am glad that he has the opportunities which our wealth has given him. Of course our son means more to us than all these things, but we still have each other, you know."

"Yes, my dear, we still have each other," he said.

Mrs. Jameson kissed her husband affectionately and led him toward the window.

"Look!" she exclaimed. "A plane!" Sure enough, high over the great expanse of white lawn before the house circled a tiny plane the sound of whose motors just barely reached their ears. Nearer and nearer the earth it came, and Mrs. Jameson kissed her husband again. She knew that in the plane was Richard, their boy, their treasure.

"It is my Christmas present to you and to him," interrupted his wife. "Just as twenty-one years ago today I gave him to you as your son and heir, today I give him back to you. With this machine he can visit us on holidays, for now we are twelve hours nearer Chicago."

LOVER OF TODAY A "GOLD DIGGER"?

Would Seem So, if This Story Is True.

Where the etesian winds blow over the Egyptian sea, at the port of Alexandria, all is not well; and true love, which never runs smoothly, is having its difficulties—because England went off the gold standard.

As the story goes, a young Egyptian was strolling along the shore of the Lake Mareia, fed by waters of the Nile, his ladylove by his side. They were to be married and the young man was happy in the knowledge that the girl's father had settled upon her a dowry of 500 Egyptian argenteus, a coin kindred to the British pound sterling.

With this sizable fortune, the young lovers planned to wing their way on a honeymoon into the cinnamon country, through the Arabian gulf. While booking passage, next day, the young gallant came across the latest news from England, brought in on a freighter, announcing the suspension of the gold standard. Immediately, his prospective father-in-law was appraised of the fact that there would be no wedding unless the ante was boosted to £700. Otherwise, the girl would be left waiting at the temple.

Now here is rigid departure from the standards of old, when the Rameses presided over the destinies of Egypt. Then, a lover laid before his lady's feet heaps of incense resin, and ebony, and pure ivory, and gold and silver from the land of Amu, with tresp wood, and the cassiabar, ahm incense and mestumkohl, with the skins of leopards from the north, apes and monkeys, and a jug of wine; but these things happened before the days of the Egyptian miners, the gold-diggers.

At that time, as it is taken from the "oldest book in the world," written on papyrus, a man bothered himself not about a dowry from his wife's parents, but undertook to provide for the lady, to wit: "Take care of thy house; love thy wife purely; fill her stomach; clothe her back; these are the cares to give to her body. Careless her, fulfill her desire during the time of thine existence; it is a kindness which honors its master. Be not brutal; consideration will lead her better than force; . . . this is her breath, her aim, her gaze. This establishes her in thy house; if thou repellst her it is an abyss. Open thine arms to her for her arms; call her, show thy love, and give to her of thy bounty, all thy worldly goods."

Now, what have we in Egypt? Because Great Britain suspends the gold standard there are a lot of sulky young men who will not marry unless their fathers-in-law-to-be dig down in their jeans and make up the loss on the bourse. Old Cheops would roll over in his grave, and the regent queen mother of Thotmes III, who advised her son to shower upon his beloved all the precious woods of the Holy land, with verdant incense trees, and all his household goods, would blush with very shame, were she not mummified.

Gone are the good old days in Egypt, when lovers came bearing gifts. The spirit of materialism has fallen upon the swain of the land. The code of the fortune hunter has taken the place of the tomes of Ptolemy who, advising the young men to marry, let loose this piece of wisdom, an inscription found at Abusiml: "Activity produces riches and riches do not last when activity slackens."

In the badinage of Broadway, a man who comes seeking remittances from his father-in-law is a bum. In the case of the Egyptians, it may be set down as a sad state of affairs when the romances of Cairo are blasted by the enactment of laws made in a London parliament, thus proving that it is a small world after all. Its smallness, in this instance, is best exemplified by the shriveled souls of the inamorati who postpone their wedding until their father-in-law recoup lost fortunes. These fellows must come from Lower Egypt, for in the higher life there is no gold standard attached to love.—John J. Daly, in the Washington Post.

High Honors Accorded Fourth-Century Hermit

The world laughed tolerantly at last summer's "Monkey Marathon," when small boys took to trees in endurance contests; and there could be no better proof that times have changed. The Fourth century took similar performances more seriously.

Consider Simeon Stylites. He chained himself to a great rock on which he began to erect a column of smaller stones. Aided by his admirers, who rapidly increased in numbers, he raised the pile, first to a height of 9, and finally to 60 feet. In this last and lofty situation, he endured the heat of 30 summers and the cold of as many winters.

He sometimes prayed in an erect attitude with his outstretched arms in the figure of a cross; but his most familiar practice was that of bending his meager skeleton from the forehead to the feet, and a curious spectator, after numbering 1,234 repetitions, at length desisted from the endless account.

Simeon died, without descending from his pillar, as a result of an ulcer on his thigh. The ulcer owed its origin to pride. The devil, so the story goes, assumed an angelic form and drew up beside the pillar top in a fiery chariot. He invited Simeon to ascend, as had Elijah, and the saint was ready. As he lifted his foot to step in, the devil spanked him cruelly and vanished in a cloud of sulphurous smoke.

This chastisement to pride won for the hermit great repute and when, a few years later, his bones were borne to Antioch, the patriarch of the city, the master-general of the East, six bishops, 21 counts or tribunes and 6,000 soldiers former the guard of honor.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Camels and Locomotives

One of the biggest concrete bridges in the world is along the new railway lines being built through Turkey. Although only a little over 500 miles long, the two lines penetrate difficult country, necessitating the building of about 2,000 bridges, large and small, and many tunnels. In Ankara an average of 8,000 blasts of dynamite a day are used to dislodge the rocky wastes. More than 18,000 peasants and shepherds are employed on the work besides thousands of peasant women who labor as stone breakers. An oriental touch is given to the picture by thousands of camels used to transport supplies as the building progresses.

There are people who just naturally make you cheerful because they are—bless 'em.

None are so blind as those who imagine they see it all.

Cook County Told To Enforce Tax Collection Laws

Springfield, Ill., December 18—Battle lines are being tightly drawn, and a finish fight is expected within the next ten days in the special session of the legislature called to provide a remedy for the Cook County tax mess.

For six weeks the legislature has been in session. Some have charged that the senators and representatives have accomplished nothing. That is incorrect. They have accomplished one of the most important things possible. They have ascertained the facts, the reason why Chicago, second city in the nation, is on the verge of bankruptcy.

That reason is maladministration of the existing tax laws of Illinois. Other counties in Illinois enforce the laws. The judgment of a large number of legislators is that Cook County MUST enforce them.

Melvin A. Traynor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago who addressed a joint session of Senate and House recently, made a hurried trip to Springfield Tuesday and conferred with the joint revenue committees of both houses.

It is firmly believed that the net accomplishment was to strengthen the legislators in their conviction that enforcement of present laws, and not the enactment of new, burdensome laws, is the remedy.

Mr. Traynor's visit, is believed to have been precipitated by two incidents. One was the despatching of a formal letter to Governor Emerson by the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers of Chicago.

This letter declares: "Cook County must be given an assessment machinery and personnel that shall have as its first and primary objective the levying of a fair, legal, collectable tax."

Reciting the fact that the Cook County taxes for 1928 and 1929 have been voided by lower courts on the basis of fraud, and that the 1930 assessment, if spread as a tax, will be similarly attacked, the letter declares war.

The other reason was a mass meeting of 2500 Cook County taxpayers Monday night at the Morrison hotel in Chicago, at which legislators and laymen served notice upon the "powers that have been", that this is a fight to a finish, if necessary in the United States Supreme Court.

Senator Earl B. Searcy, of Springfield, who has led the fight in the Senate for governmental honesty that will uphold the integrity of the state, (Cook County owes the state $44,000,000) said today:

"It is now apparent that the same group from Chicago who urged measures at the last two sessions of the legislature as panaceas for all the ills of Cook County, are now behind the so-called 'bankers' program'."

"On both former occasions the legislators from the hinterland of Illinois accepted the assurance that the measures were necessary and righteous, and enacted them into law. "Both of those programs failed. One was the so-called 'Strawn Relief Plan' of 1930; the other was the re-assessment of Cook County in 1928. The net result of both of them is this threatened bankruptcy for county and state.

"Since Cook County financial leaders' cannot or will not keep their house in order, and cannot agree among themselves, the organized realty owners have stepped in to the fight and furnished the down-state legislators with facts that can not be disregarded.

"They have also made clear the fact that the legislature has been deceived on former occasions. The difficulty is so obvious, the remedy so simple, that the situation is fairly pitiful. Honest administration of existing laws is the cure.

"What the legislature can, and I believe will do, is to afford immediate cash relief by funding the 1930 assessment on a twenty year bond issue and put teeth into existing statutes.

"Many of the people of Cook County need relief from unjust taxation. All of them need relief from dishonest administration of law. Actually, Chicago as a whole needs reform more than relief."

Mokena Taxes To Be Lower

An item of considerable interest to all taxpayers in Mokena, is that the tax rates for 1931, which is used for the taxes to be paid in 1932, have been decreased from $4.34 used this last year, to $4.12½, this being on $100 assessed valuation, applying only to the village of Mokena.

In addition to a reduction of 15 per cent from last year's assessed valuation, it is found that whereas the property owners paid, this past year, $4.34 per $100, they pay for that same value in 1932, only $3.51. (This is arrived at by taking 15 per cent from $100 and multiplying by $4.12½.)

We find, in the rates, a reduction in the village costs of 18c and the county rate remaining the same, this despite a reduction in valuations of 15 per cent in the village and 12.7 per cent in the total county valuations.

Anyone can figure their 1932 taxes by taking their previous tax bill and multiplying the valuations show thereon, by $3.51.

It is gratifying that our county and state rates are remaining the same as previously, which, when taking into our accounts the reduction in valuations, means that the expenses have been cut by from 12½ per cent to 15 per cent by the governing bodies, this being somewhat in line with prevailing savings in most lines.

The County rate is made of 23c for general purposes, 8½c for mothers' pensions and tuberculosis sanitarium, 12½c for county highway tax, and 15c for bonds and interest.

Many Glad to See 1931 Pass On

By John T. Clyne

Good-by Nineteen Hundred Thirty-one! We are about to hand you your hat. Personally, I am glad to see you go. We have had very little happiness during your stay. We welcomed your coming and now we rejoice in your going.

During your visit a great many disastrous things have occurred. People have been killed and many have contributed toward their own end. Let us hope that we may never experience another such period. It would be unfair, however, to charge all our troubles to your reign. Our hysteria began in Nineteen Fourteen and we commenced losing our air in Nineteen Twenty-Nine, and have been running on flat ever since.

Just now the burden of taxation, together with the general depression has produced a desire for a change in the personnel of those who are engaged in administering the affairs in all branches of government. Regardless of party affiliation, people generally feel the pinch and view with alarm the increase of government in business and the supervision of the personal conduct of our citizens. This condition is the result of the commissions and bureaus created in response to the organized minorities who insist upon legislation favoring the "isms" of the various groups. All this adds to the burden of a tax-ridden people. The great mass of people, however, are unorganized and are now crying out in the wilderness for a Moses who can lead the way to safety and a prolongation of our national life.

For myself, I feel the Lord is coming back to Israel. Meanwhile, I am going to read the funnies and cut out the financial page. I firmly believe things will be better with your successor. So good-bye, Old Tom and may the Lord have mercy on your poor soul.

Old Fashioned English Play Coming

"The Beggar's Opera", opening at the Eighth Street Theatre in Chicago for six days only, commencing Monday, December 28, is really a musical play and in it over sixty ballads are introduced. These were all popular tunes, many of them old even when the opera was written in 1728—and are no less catchy and popular today. They are Scotch, Irish, Welsh and English folk tunes in origin and among them are such favorites as "Over the Hills and Far Away", "Chevy Chase", "Lillibulero", "Good Morrow, Gossip Joan", "Green Sleeves", "Fill Every Glass" and "Gin Thou Wert Mine Awn Thing" etc.

These were old and familiar songs that were sung on the streets, but they all had new words written for them by John Gay, the author of the play, and were thus made to carry along the plot. They were strung along an ingenious thread of story, and the play served as a model for a long list of ballad operas and later the Gilbert and Sullivan operas and our own musical comedies, not one of which have ever equalled "The Beggar's Opera" for tunefulness or for the clever and daring lines.

The arrangement of the tunes was left to Dr. Pepusch, a famous London musician of the day and a rival of Handel's as a popular conductor. In writing "The Beggar's Opera", Gay had in mind a parody of the fashionable Italian Opera which was enjoying a vogue in England during this period. By introducing two rival sopranos into the opera Gay secured many laughs; he further poked fun at the extravagancies of plot and action as well as the vocalisms of the Italian singers.

"The Beggar's Opera" set a new fashion; it put into the discard the highly conventionalized and florid operatic form. It restored the simple folk songs and popular music and returned to the vernacular.

The company presenting this old music play comes direct from London and includes Sylvia Nelis, as Polly Peachum; Elsie French as Mrs. Peachum; Vera Hurst, as Lucy Lockit; John Mott as Captain Macheath and Charles Magrath as Peachum.

JUST before I came East to start my radio broadcasts, I dropped in at the Cocoanut Grove in Los Angeles to hear Gus Arnheim and his Orchestra. Gus is an old friend of mine and a fine musician. He told me he had a new song he wanted me to hear.

Then he played "Sweet and Lovely" which he had just written with Harry Tobias and Jules Lemare. The minute I heard it I knew it was going to be a big hit. It had everything. A great melody that was "different," but very singable, and a clever lyric that I felt sure would catch the popular fancy.

To get everything out of this song, I find it best to take it quite slowly and that is the way I have sung it on

Costs $25.00 an Acre To Grow Soy Beans On Illinois Farms

Urbana, Ill.,—Soybeans, the crop which has had a rapid rise in Illinois during the past few years, costs about $25.00 an acre to grow in the central part of the state, according to figures just announced by R. C. Ross, of the farm organization and management department, College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, following a two-year study on 182 farms.

This cost, which was based on the 1928 and 1929 crops, includes pay for the farmers' own time at hired man's wages, the use of power and machinery, the cost of seed and inoculation twine, harvesting, meals, overhead, taxes and interest on land value. There were slight variations in the figure depending upon whether the crop was threshed, combined or put up for hay. The acre cost of $25.00 compares closely with that of corn.

The 182 central Illinois farms which were included in the two year study grew a total of 8,543 acres of soybeans, or an average of 47 acres a farm. Approximately 28 per cent of this acreage was harvested with the binder and thresher method, 62 per cent was combined and 10 per cent was combined and 10 per cent cut for hay.

Of the total cost of $25.00 an acre, $9.00 went for preparation of the seed bed, seeding and cultivation, seed and inoculation. Costs of harvesting the crop and delivering the grain varied somewhat with the method of harvesting, but amounted nearly to $6.90. Taxes and interest on and accounted for the rest of the cost, or more than $10.00 an acre.

Yields for the two years were the highest on record, averaging 22 bushels an acre for those cut and threshed and a little more than 23 bushels for the combined beans. Acre costs varied but little with differences in yield, but the higher the yield the lower were the bushel costs. Average bushel costs varied from $1.04 to $1.07 in 1928 and 1929, depending upon the method of harvesting. In years with lower yields the bushel cost would have been higher. If no allowance were made for the feed or fertility value of the straw, the bushel cost would be calculated by dividing the acre cost of approximately $25.00 by the number of bushels an acre. On this basis 29 bushel crop would cost $1.25 a bushel, a 17-bushel yield $1.47 a bushel and a 15-bushel harvest $1.67.

Tillage must be both thorough and timely. A shallow layer of soil, as nearly dust-like as practicable, should be over the surface of the garden at all times. Tillage done at the wrong time is often injurious instead of beneficial.

Illinois has nearly seven per cent of the total value of all farm buildings in the United States.

Tenants operate 29.2 per cent of the farms in the state.

We fully believe that no one industry within the limits of this section of the state has made more rapid progress as an important industrial factor during the past decade than the Overman Jersey Dairy, Joliet, Illinois whose model plant is one of our most valued industrial assets.

Since the location in this place of this plant it has been continually improved due to the rapid increase of the business until today the creamery from every standpoint is the equal of any similar industry in the country, while its products are sold over many retail counters throughout this section of the union, thus doing more to advertise this section than any other enterprise.

Overman Jersey Dairy is so well known that their wholesomeness is not questioned. Just phone them and your order will receive prompt and careful attention.

To give our readers an adequate idea of the large operations of this concern we will state that they transact business with hundreds of farmers who supply them with milk and cream and that they pay out thousands of dollars each year for their supply.

The farmers all through this section around Joliet are well satisfied with the top notch prices paid by this reliable firm for milk and cream and a large number of them are sending in their products to this plant.

The production of milk, and cream is a proposition that ought to appeal to every owner, even of a small farm, as it is a well known fact that this mode of farming builds up the land and at the same time makes the producer more money than he could make by straight farming and then he gets paid right along in cash.

This establishment is thus adding much to this section as a valuable market at our door for the products of the farm. Adv.

He is a recognized leader in this profession as is attested by scores of his satisfied patrons. If you would have expert dental work, visit the office of Dr. P. V. Hoover, Joliet, Illinois.

He has a natural aptitude for this work and to this fact his eminent success is perhaps due. He fully enjoys doing all phases of the work. He is careful, conscientious in the drilling, extracting, etc., and wouldn't cause his patients pain if it could possibly be avoided. He is past master in the usage of anti-pain measures, both of local anesthetics and gasses, and certainly wouldn't care to extract a tooth for a patient without using one of these processes.

If people could know the many ills that neglected teeth can cause, they certainly wouldn't delay the visit to the dentist. So many ills have been traced to the decayed or infected teeth that the first thing the doctor asks you about is your teeth, and advises an X-ray at once. Many people seemingly, have a perfect set of teeth, yet are not well, and upon having the teeth X-rayed, find puss bags have formed at the roots and are throwing poisons through their systems.

Dr. P. V. Hoover has equipped his office with all modern and scientific equipment for his profession. His office is always immaculate and the dental tools sterilized and ready for work. The making of bridges and plates is a delicate piece of mechanism and requires mechanical as well as technical knowledge. He makes a specialty of both bridges and plates and there is not any branch of the profession in which he is not skillful.

Aside from his high professional standing Dr. P. V. Hoover is one of the leading citizens of the community and in this Industrial Magazine Section we take pleasure in complimenting him upon his successful efforts and recommend him to all our readers. Adv.

SHOULD BE SELECTED FOR PLANTING

It is easily started.
Grows at a fair rate.
Attains large size and long life.
Does not prevent grazing.
Yields edible nuts.
Produces useful and valuable timber.

Black walnut should be planted in agricultural soils well provided with moisture and well drained. Because of the good grade of soil and length of time required to produce valuable timber in forest stands, the planting of black walnut on a large scale by individual farmers is not recommended. Black walnut may be grown profitably for timber and nuts as individual trees, or in small groups on good land that is not valuable for other purposes.

A thermometer buried 50 feet deep will remain at the same temperature the year round.

Approximately three hundred thousand hunting licenses are issued in Illinois every year.

SUGGESTIONS FOR FARMERS

Two lines of profit are derived by the use of specially selected mares on farms: Raising colts and doing farm work.

To obtain the maximum gains from this system, the animals used for work on the farm should be brood mares and the young horses which are increasing in value.

Mares chosen for work and breeding must be well bred, sound individuals of desirable conformation. It does not pay to raise scrub colts.

Mares doing this double duty should receive extra feed, care, and management.

The selection of a stallion is highly important. A low service fee should not tempt one to use an inferior stallion.

It is advantageous to produce a uniform lot of foals. Select breeding animals with this in view.

There may be less interference with the farm work if the mares foal in the fall.

Careful choice in mating creates greater possibilities for the offspring, but these possibilities are realized only when nourishing feed and regular attention are given the young animals.

The plan suggested is an advance toward producing better horses.

Remember that good breeding, proper feed, and careful management are essential to realize most returns from the colt crop.

Too Much Protein

By
R. C. FRAZEE
A New York dairyman

MANY Eastern dairymen undoubtedly have fed too much protein for economical milk production. Long force of habit keeps us feeding 24 per cent protein mixtures, even though our percentage of alfalfa and clover is increasing by leaps and bounds. Results now indicate 20 per cent is sufficient with ordinary hay and 16 per cent with good clover or alfalfa.

I have long fed a 20 per cent mixture, usually cutting it down to 18 per cent as the lactation period lengthens. Recently when the entire herd averaged about five months fresh while feeding some second cutting alfalfa I dropped from 15 to 12 per cent with no shrinkage in milk. Most of the cows gained a little, some as much as 12 per cent. So that 12 per cent with good second-cutting alfalfa seems to be sufficient.

BRIEF BUSINESS LAWS

If a note is lost or stolen it does not release the maker; he must pay it if the consideration for which it was given and the amount can be proven.

Notes bear interest only when so stated. Principals are responsible for the acts of their agents.

Each individual in a partnership is responsible for the whole amount of the debts of the firm, except in cases of a special partnership. The word "limited" in connection with a firm name, indicates that a limitation of responsibility for each member is fixed.

Ignorance of the law excuses no one. An agreement made on a Sunday is void, also one dated ahead of its issue. It may be dated back at pleasure.

Contracts made on Sunday cannot be enforced. A note by a minor is void in some States, and in others it is voidable on judicial decision.

A contract made with a minor, or a lunatic, is void.

A note obtained by fraud or from a person in a state of intoxication cannot be collected. It is a fraud to conceal a fraud. Signatures made with a lead pencil are good in law. The acts of one partner bind the rest.

"Value received" is usually written in a note, and should be, but it is not necessary. If not written it is presumed by the law or may be supplied by proof.

The maker of an "accommodation" bill or note (one for which he has received no consideration), having lent his name or credit for the benefit of the holder, is not bound to the person accommodated, but is bound to all other parties, precisely as if there were a good consideration.

No consideration is sufficient in law if it is illegal in its nature. Checks or drafts must be presented for payment without unreasonable delay.

An indorser has a right of action against all whose names were on the bill when he received it.

If the letter containing a protest of non-payment be put into the post office, any miscarriage does not affect the party giving notice.

Notice of protest may be sent either to the place of business or residence of the party notified.

LIFE

All in the dark we grope along,
And if we go amiss
We learn at least which path is wrong.
And there is gain in this.
We do not always win the race
By only running right,
We have to tread the Mountain's base
Before we reach its height.
But he who loves himself the last
And knows the use of pain,
Though strewn with errors all his past,
He surely shall attain.
Some souls there are that needs must taste
Of Wrong, ere choosing right;
We should not call those years a waste,
Which led us to the light.

PIT SILOS

Pit silos have been constructed in rapidly increasing numbers in the Southwest during the last few years. Their growing use has resulted from the unsatisfactory service given by silos of wood under the prevailing climatic conditions, together with the scarcity of materials necessary for constructing masonry silos and the high cost involved in getting these materials on the ground.

Pit silos can be constructed by farm labor at a comparatively small outlay of cash. If well made they are permanent and safe, and the cost of repair is practically negligible. These underground silos should be constructed only in soils that are firm and free from rocks, sand strata, and seeps, and where the water table is always below the bottom of the floor after they are dug.

While the feeding of silage can usually be done more easily and more rapidly from the above-ground types of silos, the use of types of hoists has shown that this advantage is but a slight one.

The construction of pit silos is recommended only where a combination of soil and climatic conditions exists such as is found in the Southwest.

Bovine Tuberculosis Is Fast Being Eradicated

Bovine tuberculosis is now being eradicated from the herds in the United States. In some states the infection of bovine tuberculosis is found in 16 per cent. of all the cattle. This is the case in the state of New York. Most of the Southern states have less than 1 per cent. and some have less than one-half of 1 per cent. It will require many millions because this disease has been kept out of the various Southern states by live stock sanitary laws. Also many shipped and slaughtered where many of them are condemned and tanked. The South is exceedingly fortunate, of dollars, however, to eradicate the disease. Some four million dollars are being spent annually and the work has just started. In New York state trainloads of infected cattle are states have been testing most of the milk cows and pure-bred cattle and destroying all of the reactors.

When Westinghouse said he could stop trains with air he was thought to be a fool. Today all trains are equipped with air brakes.

The first long distance transmission system of manufactured gas at high pressure was operated in Illinois.

ZERO ICE CO.

ICE IS BEST AND MOST ECONOMICAL

For proof of that statement. Phone Joliet 4261 and just request the facts. Visit their Plant at 1318 Cass St. Joliet, Ill.

This institution typifies better than any other the material progress of this community and the fact that this section of the state is organized along twentieth century lines as regards the continued development of commerce and agriculture.

It is a recognized fact that one of the most necessary utilities of the day is a modern ice and cold storage service. This service is one that is most essential in the modern and progressive community.

Their equipment was installed at an enormous expense and is operated by a competent staff of employees. As new improvements in equipment are brought out and approved this company is very keen to adopt the same and by this means have kept their ice plant up-to-date from the sanitary and scientific standpoint.

The supplying of pure ice to the American home is an industry of no mean importance and requires a large capital and men of experience to operate the same to the best advantage.

The Zero Ice Company, Joliet, Illinois is one of the thoroughly modern and up-to-date establishments of its kind in this section of the state and it has won wide and well merited popularity.

In recognition of their satisfactory service a large portion of the public has come to know them and depend upon them for their supplies in their line.

Another outstanding feature of this business is their prompt delivery and reasonable prices. They maintain a large fleet of trucks which make the problem of delivery easily and satisfactorily solved.

Right here we wish to assist the people of the community in fully comprehending the value of this plant. It is a valued asset and a tribute to the commercial sagacity of the members of the management of the establishment as well as to the public spirited policy which inspired these men when they founded this public convenience.

We believe it due them that we at this time call attention to the many desirable features of their service to the public.

We do not think we exaggerate when we say that this concern has saved the patrons of this establishment many dollars in expense in the past through the maintenance of this plant in this vicinity. We also wish to compliment the Zero Ice Company upon their position in the industrial field of this section and to assure the public that they will be well and economically served here. Adv.

Joliet Maytag and Appliance Co.

Maytag Washing Machines and Frigidaire Refrigeration

At this popular store you can find the famous Maytag Washing Machine known from coast to coast for its dependability. Phone Joliet 22569 for demonstration or visit their show room at 309 N. Ottawa and see their new Frigidaire Ice boxes.

Here we have the famous Maytag washer, known the country over for its dependability. Because it is utterly reliable and dependable it is handled by Joliet Maytag and Appliance Company.

The new Maytag depicts the importance of time in a way that is not equaled by any other household appliance. It reduces the time of washing which formerly required the biggest part of the day to a matter of minutes only. You can wash a tub of white clothes clean in seven minutes and colored clothes in ten minutes. As a matter of fact, the entire week's washing may be done in one hour's time.

The saving is not in time alone but in labor. When you do a week's washing with the Maytag you are not tired, there is no work connected with it, merely turning on the electric juice or switching on the gasoline engine, running water into the machine, and adding the soap and clothes. The washer does the rest, and you are not tired out when it is finished and on the line.

The new Maytag has a non-crash roll wringer which allows buttons and other solid objects to pass harmlessly yet the water is completely expelled from the fabrics, regardless of its thickness. It is the sensation of the present day home laundering.

The Maytag is the most compact washer made. It requires less space than ordinary washers, notwithstanding its remarkable capacity. It is scientifically shaped, with rounded corners which promote perfect water action. Its funnel shaped bottom acts as a sediment trap for loosened dirt, keeping the water cleaner. The legs are adjustable and may be raised or lowered to suit your convenience. All gears and driving mechanism on the Maytag is enclosed making it both safe and neat. If you are not familiar with this wonderful washing machine see it or ask for a demonstration at Joliet Maytag and Appliance Company.

Here also may be seen the gasoline multi-motor for those not within the reach of electric power. This is a very exclusive feature and no one need be without the use of a Maytag, regardless of where they are located. The gasoline multi-motor has brought a new washday to the farm.

Quantity production and the great buying power of General Motors have made possible the new low Frigidaire prices—the lowest in the history of electrical refrigeration. Long the leader in value as well as in number of users, the New Frigidaire now offers even greater value than ever before. Model for model and size for size, the New Frigidaire offers more and costs less than any other electrical refrigerator.

Most self contained and automatic features are obtained in the New Frigidaire system where a temperature normally ten degrees colder than that produced from ice of questionable purity prevails. It contains a freezing chamber which forms ice into individual cubes and is invaluable for preserving foodstuffs. The saving accrued from the prevention of foods spoiling will in a short time go a long way toward paying for the plant.

No matter how humble, there is no place like home, when provided with the New Frigidaire system. It can be secured in many different sizes and serves a four-fold purpose—provides a supply of pure ice, eliminates cleaning of ice box, saves food and promotes better health, creates the spirit of saving in the household.

In making this Industrial Magazine Section we wish to compliment the Joliet Maytag and appliance Company upon their superior judgement in selecting the Maytag washer. Adv.

The Third Day

The word "Tuesday" is based on the name of the Norse god of war, Tyr, the son of Woden, from whence comes the word "Wednesday." The French call Tuesday "Mardi," honoring Mars, the Roman war god. There is a "Shrove" Tuesday in the church calendar, it being the Tuesday before Lent.

NUTTY NATURAL HISTORY

BY HUGH HUTTON

THE MONGOLIAN WART HOUND

This rare animal inhabits the chow mein fields of northern China, coming out only at sunset to nibble the shredded wheat seeds. It lives in great terror of the choppersnipe, a reptile that delights in snopping off the tender iliacs on the end of the wart hound's tail. During the rainy season it burrows underneath the mezzanine flooring to hibernate.

It is a very nutty animal, its head being one of those double peanuts stuck on his almond body with chewing gum. His clove feet (not cloven) get him around pretty well, but he needs the toothpick and raisin tail for a balancer. He uses popcorn for ears and warts, and they do very well. The eyes are white and black paint.

OLD SAYINGS ABOUT THE WEATHER.

If it thunders on Sunday, the death of a great man will follow; on Monday, the death of a woman is portended; on Tuesday in early summer, an abundance of grain; on Wednesday, warfare is threatened; on Thursday, an abundance of both sheep and of corn; on Friday, a man of note will be murdered, and on Saturday, there will be a pestilence or some other great disaster.

Truly, thunder is an ill-omened visitor at the best!

If the full moon should rise red, expect wind.

The sharper the blast, the sooner 'tis past.

A light, yellow sky at sunset foretells a windstorm.

Three foggy morning in succession mean rain.

In 1929, more than 24,000 farm homes were lighted with electricity. 17,000 of these were on power lines and about 7,000 private electric plants.

MOTHER'S EXERCISE

I wondered how my Mother got Her proper exercise.
She doesn't golf or go to gym
Or play a game with any vim.
And so I asked her why, one day.
She looked at me so wise
And showed me from the kitchen door,
Where, flapping in the air,
The baby's clothes hung on the line.
I soon had counted 'way past nine.
She laughed like everything and said,
'My Daily Dozen's there!'

When our loved ones have departed from this earth, our last opportunity to show that we really loved them is for a decent burial. In this respect we wish to bring to your attention the Elmhurst Cemetery in Joliet, Illinois.

To build a cemetery for a rapidly growing city such as we have in our vicinity takes not only enormous capital, but a live organization to keep it up. This is a modern burial place; one of permanent enduring beauty and sure of perpetual care and upkeep by a special fund set aside for the purpose.

Every effort is made here to soften the sorrow of the bereaved, where understanding and sympathy abound. The management has taken every precaution to make it possible for members to make burials in harmony with their religion and principles. The general practice of man today throughout the civilized world is to lay their dead facing the east as did the early Christians for their faith in the Resurrection—facing the east toward the rising sun. However most any ideas you may have can be here carried out for you or your loved one's wishes.

At the Elmhurst Cemetery in Joliet several hundred burials have taken place and we understand that lot reservations, for future use, have been and are being made by a great number of our loyal residents. Let us say here, that first come first served, so if you want a choice location see the management at once or write for information on location, prices, etc.

In concluding this Industrial Magazine Section, the publisher wishes to direct the attention of our large army of readers to the desirable features of having burial reservations completed. It is a great relief to those near and dear in time of sorrow to know that these details have been arranged. We highly compliment the directors of this organization upon the invaluable service they are rendering in furnishing our community with a modern memorial resting place. Adv.

KINDNESS

"A man of kindness to his beast is kind,
Brutal actions show a brutal mind,
Remember, He who gave thee speech and reason
Made the brute and formed him mute:—
He can't complain, but God's omniscient eye
Beholds thy cruelty, He hears his cry,
He was destined thy servant and thy drudge,
But knows this—His Creator is thy Judge."

DEPRESSION ?

Every one's scenting a panic,

Every one's singing the blues,

Still whenever you go to a picture show,

You stand—till they're through with the news.

The country is going to perdition,

We'll have bread lines before we have snow—

But try to buy seats for a football game

And see what you get for your "dough."

We're all going to starve—that's decided,

A job simply cannot be bought,

But when Sharky fights Who's this, just try to get in

And you'll see what "hard times" we've got.

The gov-er-ment's got to do something,

Or we'll fall in our tracks and we'll lay—

Yet the lady, by gosh, who does up our wash

Brings it back in a nice new coupe.

So I think all this talk of a panic,

Of the country about to go "blooey,"

Between you and me, and the old apple tree,

Is a lot of plain old-fashioned "hooley."

Inspection of Butter Is Improving Its Quality

Federal-state shipping point inspection of butter is having a marked influence in improving the quality of the product, the United States department of Agriculture has announced, publishing figures on the expansion of the service.

Beginning with one inspection in July, 1924, the department says, the federal-state butter inspection service in Minnesota has increased until at present five inspectors are required. The quantity of butter inspected during the year ending January 31, 1926, reached 80,416,087 cent. at the beginning of the year. A marked decrease is shown also in the percentage of butter scoring 90 or less, the quantity in this class at the end of the year being 8 per cent. of all butter made, compared with 19 per cent. at the beginning of the year.

At the end of the year more than 80 per cent. of all butter inspected in Minnesota was 92 score or higher, as compared with less than 56 per cent. The service is available at Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Chicago.

This company is one of the most sanitary and carefully conducted institutions of its kind in this section of the country and makes the most popular beverage.

They are fully equipped with the most modern equipment and devices for the manufacture of pure soft drinks. Their beverages are made from none but purest syrups, flavors and other ingredients and for this reason their products are unquestioned and are sought by the large majority of people at soda fountains and other places where soft drinks are dispensed. They long ago established a reputation which they have lived up to in every respect. The public also appreciates the fact that this firm's delicious beverages cost no more than inferior brands on the market.

The Reimer's Bottling Works in Joliet where their products are prepared is a model of system and cleanliness and no pains or expense is spared to serve the public with a line of soft drinks surpassed by none in the country. A visit to their plant which is open at all times to the inspection of the public, will well repay you for the time so taken.

The pure food authorities recently declared that soda water was a valuable food, not alone for its cooling and refreshing qualities, but because its contents is composed of body building substance necessary for the human system. The carbonated water with its elements of sodium, cleanses the lining of the stomach, thereby materially assisting digestion.

To facilitate distribution of their products they maintain a fleet of trucks by which means your orders are at your door in a short time. These trucks daily traverse a large section of this part of the state. All orders, sent by mail or telephone, are executed with dispatch and patrons speak highly of the service accorded by this popular establishment.

Nearly all soda fountains, restaurants and soft drink establishments in this community handle this firm's beverages and will take pleasure in serving you with your particular flavor. You should keep a case or two in your home as there is nothing more refreshing for the tired housewife than a cool, satisfying glass of Edelweiss.

Try a case of any of the brands, the cost is trivial. To those who desire the "best made" in soft drinks, phone your order and you will not be disappointed. Adv.

WHAT KIND OF SALAD?

"I NEVER eat anything but a salad for luncheon," says the woman who is trying to reduce, and therewith makes way with an order of chicken or crab flake salad, containing one or two lettuce leaves and some four hundred or so calories of chicken or crab and mayonnaise dressing. Her appetite is satisfied and her conscience is clear. Only she wonders why she does not lose weight.

In planning a dinner menu at home or in ordering dinner at a restaurant bear in mind that certain salads are inappropriate. Unless the meal has been light a lobster or other fish salad should not be chosen, unless the fish mixture was served in very small portions. The usual lobster salad is more appropriate for a supper or luncheon where the salad forms the main course.

Potato salad is seldom appropriate for dinner—it is better served with cold meats at supper or lunch. A sweet salad or an elaborate fruit salad is not well chosen for dinner when there is to be a dessert following. If you select a sweet salad let it suffice for the dessert. Wafers and cheese with coffee may be appropriately served with salad at the last course of dinner.

JUST SUPPOSE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

WHEN I was a little lad,
Oh, the many things I had!
Things I hadn't, goodness knows,
Just the things you just suppose.
Yes, the wealth I used to own;
Ev'ry glitter of a stone,
Ev'ry rock that used to shine,
Made me sure there was a mine,
Something gorgeous, something grand,
Underneath our pasture land.

Father used to laugh at me;
Mother, gentle as could be,
Even smiled a little bit
While she frowned at Father's wit.
"Just suppose," I used to say,
"There's a mine there, anyway,
Wouldn't we be rich a lot?"
"Yes," he'd say, "but, son, there's not."
Yet my answer was to his,
"Yes, but just suppose there is?"

Well, I've wandered far away,
Many both the mile and day,
And I know that Dad was right.
Yet I find that life's delight
Is not what we're sure about,
Added, proved and figured out,
Mortal friendship, woman's kiss,
And a thousand things like this.
Happier than one who knows
Are the ones who just suppose.

THE STORY

Six bandits held up the steamer, Midnight Sun, on the MacKenzie, kill Jimmy Montgomery, and escape with gold dust and furs. At the Mounted Police post at Fort Endurance, Sergeant Alan Baker disputes with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, regarding plans for the capture of the bandits. Baker starts out in the police launch with five men. At the MacMillan trading post, Joyce MacMillan is thrilled at the arrival of the police launch. She had expected to marry Baker, and had been stunned at news that he was to marry Elizabeth Spaulding. Stolen furs are found on the MacMillan place and evidence points to Joyce's father. Joyce defends him. Alan leads his expedition up the Big Aloska and catches sight of the bandits.

After several minutes of waiting, Larry pointed across the lake and stated quietly:

"You see that big patch of brownish flags over there, about thirty or forty yards back from the water? See that little run leading back into them? That's where our men are hiding. They're laying low along that little run. I just noticed a rat start up that run. He come back in a hurry. Then, there's a silent spot over there where I don't hear any bird or animal calls. And then some other signs. . . ."

He was silent for half a minute. Finally he whispered: "I'll show you a sign. You see that pair of canvasbacks a-coming this way? They're flying low, making for this lake. Canvasbacks like blue water. Watch 'em close."

Skimming just over the flags, the pair of graceful ducks came on; but just as they stopped beating and started the glide down upon the lake, they suddenly breasted high up in the air, exactly over the spot Larry had indicated. Veering away, they winged swiftly out of sight into the west.

Lying there in the reeds and bog, Alan studied the bandit covert and tried to plan. If all five of his men had been along with him, the outcome would have been swift and certain. He could have come at the bandits from either side, cut off any chance of escape, boxed them between two fires and deliberately shot them down. But he had split his party at the Aloska Forks, as Haskell ordered. Now, at the crucial hour here in the Thal-Azzah, Pedneault and those other two men, uselessly following that south branch, were a hundred and forty miles away.

He planned, rejected and planned again, and finally came to a decision. "We've got to carry the fight to them, and we've got to keep them from getting away by that creek yonder. There's only one way we can do both those things. Bill and I are going to circle around them on foot and come at them from the other side. We'll get there somehow, even if we have to swim part way. With any luck at all we ought to get into a position where we can put two or three of them out of business at the very beginning, before they wake up to us. They won't fight if they can help it. Why should they take chances on some of them getting wounded or killed, if they don't have to? They'll try to whip back across this lake and dodge into that channel yonder. Now, Larry, you'll stay here to head that off. Keep out of sight yourself; have a couple or three extra magazines handy, and wait till they get into the middle. When they get in good range, open up on them. Sink those canoes. We don't care about those men. Let them swim ashore and hide if they want to. On foot a man can't make ten miles a week in this muskrat country. With no tent, no shelter, the mosquitoes and flies would drive them crazy in less than a day, and they'd fall into our hands. If you understand now what's cut out for us, we'll be starting."

Both men nodded. Bill and Alan backed away with infinite caution, for one flushing waterfowl would raise all the others. Yard by cautious yard the two men slipped back into the rushes till they were a safe distance from the lake.

Then they began the long hard job of circling around the bandits. Wet, muddy, tortured by insect pests, they pushed steadily on, mindful of coming twilight.

It took an hour and a half to make the wide careful circle and start coming in toward the bandits from the north. With the sun cut in two by the western horizon and the chill of twilight in the air, those six men would shortly be on the move. But Alan's hopes had risen again; it seemed that he indeed "had taken his luck along." The bandits did not know they were being stalked. In half an hour more, if luck held, he and Bill would be in position to open on them all unawares.

Dropping at last to hands and knees, the two of them crawled along through muck and water, keeping only their guns dry. They came up within a hundred yards of their quarry.

As he parted the reeds in front of his face Alan saw the tops of a clump sway suspiciously. A moment later he glimpsed the dim outline of a man standing up, stretching himself, sitting down again.

In actual sight now, those men who had killed Jimmy Montgomery! And only a pistol shot away! But to take them . . . Alan cursed savagely at the thought of Pedneault and those two men a hundred and forty miles distant. As he remembered what Haskell said about the Law being behind his patrol, his lips curled in scorn at the cant expression. . . . "The Law that's supposed to be back of us, I wonder where in—! it is now! What does it mean to Bill and me now?" Here in this watery wilderness in the creeping twilight, he and Bill were going up against six men who had stood off fifty and who had murder charges hanging over their heads. And if they broke away, Larry single-handed would have to stand the whole brunt of stopping them.

At his gesture Bill slid cautiously up beside him. In whispers, Alan said to him: "Bill, we've got to get closer. We've got to get across this pond."

They Came Up Within a Hundred Yards of Their Quarry.

Those muskrat houses out there are particularly good luck for us. By keeping down in the water, with these little reeds to help hide us, we can sneak from one house to the next. The last one isn't a dozen yards from those men. If we make it we'll have point-blank range and the best kind of cover to shoot from."

Taking off their hats and jackets, they wriggled carefully out of the tall flags, eased into the water and squirmed toward the first muskrat house, which stood up four feet above the surface and entirely hid their approach. Behind it they stopped a moment, chose their next one, and sank back into the water.

As they crouched down behind the third little dome of mud and reeds, a towering red-bearded man parted the flags they were staring at, bent and scooped up a hatful of water, took a swallow, threw the rest down with an oath at its vile taste; and then, shaking the water out of his hat, he disappeared again.

Alan's last secret doubt about these bandits being utter strangers in the country was dispelled now. He had had a clear view of this huge red-bearded leader; he could say positively, as Ashmun and all the passengers had sworn, that he had never laid eyes on the man before.

To Bill he whispered: "When we reach that last house, I'll splash or do something to draw their attention. They'll come out to the flags edge again to see what it is. Don't shoot when just one man shows up. We'll wait till we have three of them in plain sight. If we get three of them at the first crack, we'll be fighting the other three on even terms. Now, Bill, when you're looking down a rifle barrel at those men, don't hesitate. Aim straight. We can't make prisoners of that outfit. This is a finish fight. One or the other party is going to get wiped out."

They started for the fourth muskrat house.

Halfway there, disaster overwhelmed them, sudden and stunning.

It came from the air, in the shape of a pair of red-throated loons. Flapping heavily out of the west, the birds dropped with a loud splash not ten feet away from the two men.

At the splash Alan heard a muffled oath over in the flags; then a rustling movement, as though the bandits had nervously jumped for their guns; then silence. And then a voice from the twilight among the reeds:

"Nothin'. Jus' a pair of divers plumped down."

The alarm would have blown over if the loons had swum off. But the birds, crop-heavy and indolent, stayed where they were, showing no intention of moving away. As the female started preening herself, the male turned its eye suspiciously at the two strange objects sticking above the water.

What startled it Alan never knew. Bill did not move; he himself did not bat an eyelash. But in that jumpy taut silence the male suddenly threw open its beak and sent up a raucous maniacal shriek, as though some animal had seized it by the neck.

Instantly its mate joined in. The jarring, ear-splitting discord set muskrats diving off their houses and flushed every waterfowl in the lake a hundred yards distant. With a last frantic peal the loons taxied over the water, finally managed to take wing, and flapped heavily away.

But the damage had been done beyond retrieve. All that hour and a half of careful stalking, all the great caution and pains of slipping unawares upon the bandits, had been set at naught by the crazy shriek of a crazy loon.

Over in the murky twilight of the flags there was a commotion, sharp orders, the click of rifle bolts. At the edge of the flags a gun cra-a-check, a rope of flame reached out, a bullet ricocheted off the water.

It was a shrewd maneuver from the bandits, a tentative shot to draw the fire of their stalkers and discover where they were. Alan was quick-witted enough to see their motive and to lie low; but Bill jerked his rifle against his cheek and shot point-blank at the spurt of fire.

A cry of pain went up. His bullet had scored. But the shot gave away their hiding. With all hope gone now of getting the drop, Alan scrambled behind cover of a muskrat house, fairly dragging Bill after him.

Half a dozen rifles exploded in the flags. Alan thrust his rifle over the top of the house and emptied it at the flashes. A bullet from a Savage, a sharp-cracking deadly Savage, hit his weapon, smashed the mechanism, numbed his hand, and drove jagged fiery bits of steel into his fingers.

For several minutes the bullets of the bandits beat a thudding tattoo against the mud mound. As best they could Alan and Bill lifted their belt-guns over the top of their shelter, and fired back. They heard no more yelps of pain. They were shooting wildly, aimlessly. Realizing this, believing the bandits had crept into the run and were sheltered by its banks, Alan stopped shooting and checked Bill.

Yonder in the reeds the fire died away raggedly. A silence fell. A minute lengthened into two, three, four. Alan heard, or thought he heard, a faint rustling, a faint gurgling of water. He listened intently, but did not hear it again.

With his plans all shattered, with the twilight steadily deepening, he was torn with desperation. If he and Bill moved, it was sheer suicide. If they crouched much longer where they were, the bandits would certainly slip away from them in the coming dark.

As he fought to think of a plan that would break this deadlock, he heard a long whistle, a clear shrill whistle from Larry's direction. It was Larry signaling.

He sprang up. "Bill! They're backed away, they've slipped up, they're breaking for the lake! Larry's alone. We've got to help Larry!"

Found It Hard to Convince Mother-in-Law

The small town mother-in-law of a New York girl had visited the couple once in their New York apartment and went home with serious misgivings about this always gay wife of her son William's.

Soon after the first baby arrived the girl went to the small town, several hundred miles from New York, to visit her mother-in-law and show off the baby.

Her lonesome husband telephoned to her one night, and said that his good old pal Bob was there and wanted just to say hello and that then he would take the phone back and talk fast for his money.

The mother-in-law heard her saying, "Why, hello, Bob," before the conversation was ended, and then, "I love you, too, sweetheart, and nobody else but you."

And it has taken the dear little old lady's son himself to convince her that things did not happen precisely as she supposed they did.—New York Sun.

Fruit Not a Hybrid

The grapefruit is not, as often supposed, a hybrid developed by crossing other fruits, says Pathfinder Magazine. So far as known, it was originally a native of southwestern Asia or the Malay and Polynesian Islands, from where it seems to have been introduced in the West Indies and Florida by the early Spanish colonists.

MOTHER GOOSE

WHO wrote the famous "Mother Goose Nursery Rhymes" we will never know. Some of them, such as "Ride a Cock Horse to Banbury Cross," "Little Jack Horner," and "London Bridge Is Falling Down," are obviously of English folk origin; others have been borrowed from a famous collection of French folk tales called "Tales of My Mother the Goose," edited in 1807 by Charles Perrault. It is nevertheless a fact that our own country can claim a real Mother Goose, through whom these indispensable nonsense ditties were first introduced to the children of America.

Mother Vergoose, her grandchildren called her. Her name was Elizabeth Vergoose, and she made her home with her daughter and son-in-law, Thomas Fleet, in Boston, early in the Eighteenth century. Like many grandmothers she held active, if doing away in the Fleet nursery, and sang her charges to sleep nightly with the well-known rhymes. Thomas Fleet was a printer by trade, and important as the editor of Boston's first newspaper, the Boston News Letter. Recognizing the value of Mother Vergoose's rhymes, he wrote them down and in 1719 published a printed copy which sold, and sold well, at two coppers each.

Elizabeth Vergoose must be given credit as collector, not as originator of these poems. But in spirit she was a real Mother Goose, "whose melodies shall never die, while nurses sing and babies cry."

ROBIN ADAIR

What's this dull town to me?
Robin's not here!
Who let I wished to see?
Robin Adair!

THUS wrote the love-lorn Lady Caroline Keppel about the famous English watering place, Bath, to which she had been banished by her father in the vain hope that "out of sight" might prove "out of mind." For young Robin Adair, however well he may sound as the hero of Lady Caroline's ballad, was as a real person no great match for an earl's daughter.

Adair was a young medical student who, after some youthful scrape, left his native Dublin to walk penniless to London and was on the way run down and injured by a coach belonging to a London society woman. She took him home with her, superintended his recovery, established him in society and introduced him to Lady Caroline.

Set to an old Irish air, Lady Caroline's little poem became immediately popular, much to the chagrin of her father. Since, however, it failed to soften his heart, she took advantage of a prerogative of her generation, went into a "decline" and thus won her point. In a recent London auction there was put up for sale an exquisite miniature of Robin Adair, Lady Caroline and their three children.

LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY

VIVIAN BURNETT in all probability was never guilty of wearing a short-trousered, black velvet suit with a big white collar, and surely he detested long curls and wide brimmed hats with streamers as much as any of the numerous seven-year olds who did wear them. Nevertheless, it was Vivian Burnett who was responsible for this amazing juvenile fashion some years ago. For it was he who inspired his mother, Frances Hodgson Burnett, to write the book that set this style, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," and the quaint ways, the sweetly candid eyes, the friendly, kind little heart that endeared its small hero to all readers, were Vivian's.

Mr. Burnett tells the story in his own book, "The Romantic Lady," a biography of his famous mother. "I shall write a book about an American boy with aristocratic English connections," Mrs. Burnett exclaimed one day, "and Vivian shall be he. Little Lord Something or other. What a pretty title! Little Lord — what Lord — what?" A day later she had written on a slip of paper still preserved, "Little Lord Fauntleroy" ten times in a column, as though testing out its appearance and sound.

Nobody knows just why she chose Fauntleroy, though it is a common enough English name. Indeed, shortly after the book was published, one man, quite unknown to her, wrote Mrs. Burnett asking just why she had chosen his name!

Book plates are ancient. Some of the small tablets found in Assyrian libraries must have been book plates. Japan had them in the Tenth century. Modern book plates are nearly contemporaneous with printing. The earliest actually known is a hand-colored heraldic wood cut of about 1480.

Lesson for December 20

THE SUPREME GIFT OF LOVE
(CHRISTMAS LESSON)

LESSON TEXT—I John 4:7-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Beloved, if God so loved us, we ought also to love one another.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Gift of Love.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Greatest Love in the World.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why Jesus Came to Earth.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Gift of the Saviour.

The committee's selection of this Scripture passage for a Christmas lesson is most fitting. The birth of Christ—the entrance of the Son of God upon the condition of humanity—was the supreme expression of God's love (John 3:16). The meaning of Christmas rightly apprehended will put love in the heart of a man for his fellows.

I. The Origin of Love (vv. 7, 8).
Love is of God for God in the essence of his being is love. God does not merely love, he is the fountainhead of all love. Love of country, love of humanity, filial and parental love—every particle of love everywhere, has been derived from God. His love is infinite, eternal and unchangeable. Since love is of God, every one who loves is born of God and knoweth God. The Christian by his life of love interprets God to the world.

II. God's Manifestation of Love (vv. 9, 10).

God's method of making known His love is through the incarnation, the sending of his only begotten Son into the world to be the propitiation for our sins (John 3:16). The coming of Jesus Christ into the world and his taking upon himself human nature makes eternal life possible for those who receive him. If one would know God's love, let him look at Jesus Christ. Those who gaze upon him with reverent contemplation cannot doubt God's love.

III. The Supreme Motive of Love (v. 11).

God's love is the grand incentive for bringing his children to love. Since the Heavenly Father loves, his children should show their resemblance to him. In the proportion that we apprehend God's love, in that measure we will love his children.

IV. Love, the Proof That God Dwells With Us (vv. 12-16).

1. No man hath seen God at any time (v. 12). But there is abundant proof of his being. The unmistakable evidence of his being is love in the heart of man. Love is not native to the human heart, for the heart is deceitful above all things and desperately wicked (Jer. 17:9). Out of the heart proceeds murder (Mt. 15:19). Love in the heart is proof that God dwells therein.

2. Love proves that God's Spirit is within us (v. 13). The fruit of the Spirit is love (Gal. 5:22).

3. Love testifies that the Father sent the Son to be the Saviour of the world (v. 14). The indwelling Spirit shows us Christ and makes us believe in him as God's Son, the Saviour.

4. Love makes fellowship with God possible (vv. 15, 16). Since God is love, he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God and God in him. Those who deny the deity and saviourhood of Christ have no fellowship with God, and those who have fellowship with God will confess Jesus Christ as his divine Son.

V. Love's Relation to the Judgment (vv. 17, 18).

It casts out fear. A judgment day is coming, for God hath appointed a day in which he shall judge the world in righteousness by that Man whom he hath ordained (Acts 17:31). It will be a terrible thing for those unprepared to meet God at that time. But for those who are indwelt by the Living God there will be a joyful meeting. The way to get rid of the fear of meeting God in the judgment is to be living now in fellowship with him.

VI. God's Love the Ground of All Love (v. 19).

The reason we love is that our lives have come into touch with the great Fountainhead of love. The incoming of God's being and nature becomes the animating and controlling principle of our lives.

VII. The Child of God Possesses Dual Love (v. 20).

The proof that one loves the unseen God is that he loves the person who bears the likeness and image of God and has become a member of the same family through the redemption in Christ Jesus. Love to God and man is united in the heart of the Christian.

VIII. The Solemn Command From God (v. 21).

God commands that those who love him should love their brethren. Obedience to this command will do away with all war and strife.

Two Days of "Freedom" for Husband and Wife

It is a mistake to think that two people can, in this Twentieth century, live their whole lives happily, successfully and abundantly on the basis that husband and wife are one, unless each party to the arrangement is free to follow his own tastes and fancies. Otherwise you inevitably get boredom and unbearable dullness. Dullness has wrecked many marriages which otherwise would have been successful.

I have eliminated the possibility of dullness. On two days each week I never see my husband. It has proved a really sound arrangement. I do what I like, go out with friends I choose, even though some of them he dislikes and others he thinks just silly. Still, he does not object. For those two days we live our lives apart as if we had no mutual responsibilities at all.

He chooses his own friends. Some of his friends I dislike as much as he dislikes some of mine. Others are just dull and uninteresting.

The days we are together we enjoy each other more, because we have been apart. We are each of us refreshed and have something new to talk about. It is not a bad plan, and I might even say that it is a plan which many other people might find very suitable. They will be surprised at the results.—Anita Loos in the London Saturday Review.

Maronites Largest of Lebanon's Many Cults

Biblical Lebanon, Asia's only Christian state and the smallest one in the world, has seven different confessions among its 226,618 inhabitants, according to the last census.

Despite mass emigration among people of their faith, Christians again maintain their majority. The largest group is the Maronites with 214,313 adherents. In addition there are 20,448 emigrants of this faith in the United States who still pay taxes to the homeland. They form one of the oldest Christian churches. Its history goes back as far as the Fourth century, retaining Aramaic as the church language. Since the Middle ages, the Maronites have recognized the pope, although they have a patriarch of their own. There are only 5,421 Protestants in the Lebanese republic. The ancient churches such as the Syrian Jacobite and the Assyro-Chaldean claim the majority of 11,000 church-goers classed among the minorities. Next to the Maronites in strength are the Sunnite Moslems with 136,040 and the Shiites with 113,536.

Bridge Wreck Razed

Mounted Cop Spy in Red Ranks

Toronto.—Sergeant John Leopold of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police told a criminal court jury here recently how for ten years he had been an active member of the Canadian Communist party, even acting as secretary of the Regina branch and attending a grand Communist conference in Moscow, to get the low down for the Canadian government on the aims and ambitions of the Reds in the Dominion.

When he testified in court against nine alleged Communists charged under the new federal law with being members of "an illegal association," Leopold wore his red uniform for the first time in a decade. Throughout all the preceding ten years his wearing apparel has been working man's rough clothing and his haunts the secret councils and conclaves of the alleged emissaries in Canada of Moscow.

He told of Moscow's hopes for Canadian secession from the British empire, of plans formulated for a Red revolt in Canada; of secret codes and communications from Moscow; of an "A" Communist party which worked legally in the open, and a "Z" party which worked illegally underground; and of a shakeup of the Canadian Communist arm at the demand of Moscow because it was not sufficiently active in fomenting strikes and unrest among the working population.

Leopold's entrance into the witness box was reserved for the last item of the crown's case in the sensational trial, and recognized as a desperate crown effort at conviction, for, with Leopold's public testimony went his further usefulness as police spy in the Red ranks. Nine pairs of scowling eyes glared at him from the prisoners' dock as he relentlessly bared the secrets of the Canadian Red organization and even revealed the secret names by which individuals were designated in party communications.

The pretentious aspirations of the Communist element, involving Canadian break with the British empire and Red revolts in the mining and industrial centers of the dominion, re-deal with uprisings or movements aimed at government authority, it had before it all the information which Sergeant Leopold gave to the Criminal court. But the government revealed nothing of it to parliament at that time.

Sergeant Leopold was known in the Communist party which he served as Regina secretary as J. W. Esselwain. He said he became one of its most trusted members. His sensational testimony relative to Moscow's interest in Canadian secession from the British empire came when he was discussing the inner councils of the 1925 convention of the Communist party of Canada.

At this 1925 convention, he said, one Moriarty was the delegate from the Communist international headquarters at Moscow. Moriarty, he said, reported that since the previous international conference in Moscow, a commission has been set up to discuss the prospect of Canadian independence.

"What did they mean by that?" asked Special Crown Prosecutor Norman Sommerville.

"Seceding from the British empire," Leopold replied.

This Moscow commission, Leopold explained, had consisted of members of the executive committee of the Communist International.

Leopold introduced and identified a literal trunk load of Communistic literature and communications which had figured one way and another in Canadian Communistic activities, and in the relations of the Canadian party with its Moscow directing heads.

One of the interesting revelations was the code system used by the party. It was a cipher code, he said, based on a certain page in a recognized publication of the party. By writing numbers certain letters were indicated, as, for instance, the number 57 would mean the fifth letter in the seventh line of the designated page.

Highest Possessions

What are the things which the average human being values most? A Wisconsin clergyman has been asking this question of leading men all over the country, and the answers, as analyzed by Channing Pollack for the American Magazine, indicate that most of the desirable possessions in people's lives cost them nothing in money.

A list of fifty such valuable possessions, for instance, shows that 48 of the 50 had no monetary cost. The three leaders are: Health, love of work and capacity for it; ability to look any man in the eye.

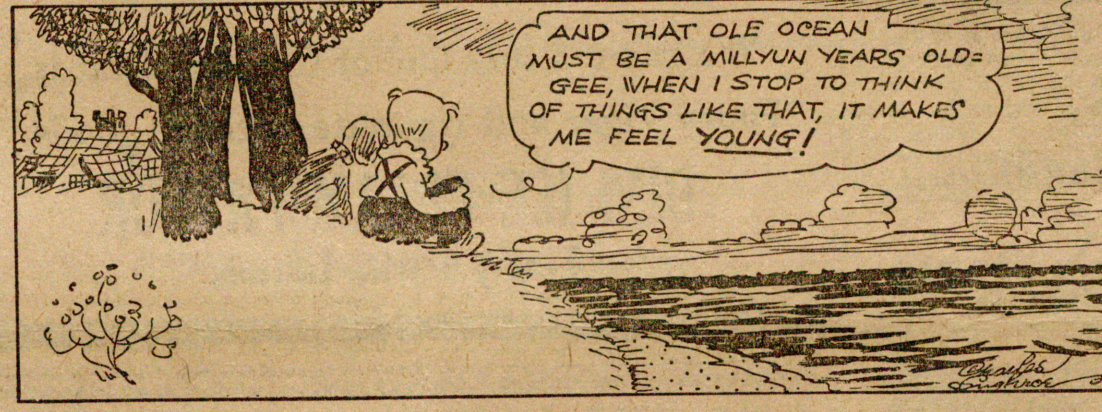

Most of these things, comments Mr. Pollack, are very common possessions, and yet nobody would take a million dollars for any one of the lot.

All Joined in Song

While on a tour of the coal mines, near Ashland, Pa., Leo Minster, barytone and member of the Apollo club of Boston, heard a miner far down underground singing at his work. The song was "My Wild Irish Rose." Minster took up the song and he and the miner made it a duet. Then every miner within hearing distance as well as officials of the company who were taking Minster on the tour joined in the chorus.

OLD AGE AND EMPLOYMENT

By THOMAS ARKLE CLARK, Emeritus Dean of Men, University of Illinois.

Harmon is out of a job. I saw him on the street yesterday, standing stolidly, discouraged looking and inactive. He is not incapable; he is not without education of a sort. He has held a number of responsible jobs; he finished high school before he went to work. He dresses with care; he reads a good deal so that he has intelligence and he gives the impression of being a gentleman.

The trouble is he is sixty years old and no one seems willing to take him on. The firm with whom he was last employed failed, went out of business, and left Harmon high and dry like a floundering ship cast upon the shore by the waves. He has tried everything he could think of but to no avail. During the last ten years the man over forty who is out of employment has had a hard time to get a job. A man of wide experience with the jobless says:

"That people past forty cannot get jobs became notably evident after the war, when a lot of them were thrown out of employment, and were never able to get their jobs back. Behind this is the delusion which has swept business circles that only the young man is fit. Efficiency experts are in part to blame. Everywhere they go, posing as gods, they throw out older people; in order to sell themselves they must make changes.

"Overspecialization, too, operates against men. A man said he was refused a job as a driver of a laundry wagon because he had been a milk wagon driver."

It is true that young men may have more initiative, they think more quickly, they are more alert, though they are not likely to think more accurately. Old men take more time but they are surer. Young men are more adaptable; they learn new ways more easily they take more risks, but they have less judgment.

There is still a place for the old man in any business where experience and judgment count.

MEDIEVAL ABBEY IS BEING RESTORED

Monks Labor 26 Years on Old Building.

Ashburton, England.—The great medieval abbey of Buckfast, which has lain in ruins for four centuries, soon will stand fully restored as a monument to the labors of a little group of Benedictine monks.

For more than twenty-six years, working in relays of six, the monks, who live nearby in the beautiful Devonshire valley, have been rearing the vast monastery from its original foundations, laid in the Eighth century. Virtually unaided, they have rebuilt it in all its former detail, and next August it is to be consecrated.

The abbey is a magnificent gray and yellow stone structure. Only the crumbling central tower and the foundation remained when in 1905 the monks decided to restore it. Although none of them had any knowledge of construction work, they were determined to do their work without outside help.

"There was but one brother who knew how to handle a hammer and trowel," said Dom Ansar Vowler, the smiling gray-haired abbot. "But we had a firm belief in Providence and great determination. A young brother was appointed to mix mortar for the solitary builder, and one by one other brothers were assigned to tasks."

At no time, however, have more than six monks been available. Since no appeal has ever been made for funds and no money ever paid for wages it has necessarily taken a long time to build the monastery.

As time went on the monks, working with white aprons over their robes, became expert masons, carpenters and decorators. They decided to install an electrical lighting system, so one brother studied books on electrical engineering until he was able to build the dynamos and other equipment.

The Christmas Pudding
 Take some human nature as you find it.
 The commonest variety will do.
 Put a little graciousness behind it.
 Add a lump of charity or two.
 Squeeze in just a drop of moderation.
 Half as much frugality or less.
 Add some very fine consideration.
 Strain off all of poverty's distress.
 Pour some milk of human kindness
 in it.
 Put in all the happiness you can.

Gay Lights Mark Santa's Route

Donner and Blitzen and the rest of the marvelous team who whisk the sleigh of Santa Claus through the crisp winter air on Christmas Eve should have little difficulty in finding their way about northern Illinois this year. Everywhere, homes gaily bedecked in the manner of the one pictured here will define the joyous route of the heard and pack with gay, colorful lights.

It has been estimated that 20,000 homes in the Metropolitan Area surrounding Chicago will decorate trees, shrubs, windows, doorways in an effort to share the happiness of their Yuletide with the world at large. And after all, it's just a good, old custom time-honored and beautiful, for light has been the symbol of Christmas
 since the first Christmas the world ever knew.

Open Evenings Until Christmas

Stir it up with laughter every minute,
 Season it with good-will toward
 every man;
 Set it on the fire of heart's affection
 Leave it till the jolly bubbles rise,
 Sprinkle it with kisses-for confection
 Sweeten with a look of loving eyes.
 Flavor it with children's merry
 chatter,
 Frost it with the snow of wintry
 dells,
 Place it on a holly-garnished platter
 And serve it with the song of Christmas bells.

The Tinley Park Garden Club met at the Anderson home on Friday, December 11. A covered dish luncheon was served at 12 o'clock.
 Eighteen members were present. The tables were set in the shape of a "T" and decorated with red candles and pine. The center pieces were potted poinsettias and each member took one home with her. The tables groaned under the weight of good things to eat. Inside of the place cards, which were made in the shape of little books, with pine tree and snow covered hills on the cover, was a Xmas verse, which each one read after the lunch. Mrs. Swisher read the above poem just before the meeting opened. The course of tree study was started. Mrs. W. Funk, Mrs. R. Hug and Mrs. Clara Goessel gave very interesting and illustrated reports on the following trees: willow, weeping willow and poplar.
 These reports were filed in a book presented to the club by Mrs. Hug.
 The program chairman, Mrs. Swisher, gave the outline of the study of trees for the entire year. Each report will be filed in a book.

Now kiddies we have received word from Santa Claus and he will meet you in person at the tree in the square on Monday night, December 21st at eight o'clock where we will all gather and sing Christmas songs.

The next meeting will be held at the Fulton home the third Friday in January.

Note: Will anyone who has information of Mrs. Lizzie Brueggemann's Garden Club memory book kindly notify her. —M. G.

ORLAND PARK ALDERMAN TENDERS RESIGNATION

Alderman Louis Nicolai of the Or-

St. John's has elected the following officers in the various organizations for the New Year:

In it's December meeting the Brotherhood elected the following officers: President, Lawrence Kohl;
 vice-president, William Lauffer; secretary, Chas. Erickson; financial secretary, Robert Yunker; treasurer,

The Y. P. League elected the following officers: President, Owen

 ffer; Secretary, Wilbur Mancke; treasurer, Milton Woodrich; financial secretary, Elmira McGovney.

The Church School elected the following officers: Superintendent, dent, Rev. T. Lapp; secretary, Elmer Lauffer; treas. Gladys Cap-pel; financial secretary, Marie Yunker.

 The plates cost the county approximately 10 cents apiece.

The time as well as the mode of collecting taxes in Will County will be changed entirely in 1932. Right after the first of the year the taxpayers of the county will receive tax bills for their personal property tax and for half the amount of their real estate. The taxpayers will then be requested to mail check for the amount of the bills to the county treasurer or pay at the latter's office in person. The other half of the real estate tax bill will be mailed July 1st. The reason for making the real estate tax payable in two installments is to make the tax burden lighter as it will be easier to pay the tax in two installments six months apart than if the whole sum had to be paid at once.

The county clerk's office is working nights in order to get all the taxes spread on the books in time for the first installment to be collected next month. The new system means a lot of extra work for the office of the county clerk as the taxes have to be totaled first and then divided into two installments. This extra work is all being done without extra pay by the county clerk and his assistants.
